

Fig. Illustration of a trivial biclique pattern due to LD structure in SNP data and how it is summarized into a representative block-block edge. Such biclique does not reflect the functional similarity between the SNPs in the same LD block. There should be only one edge connecting two functional units.